

BOSTON PRINTMAKERS NORTH AMERICAN PRINT BIENNIAL SPRING 2011

ANCILLARY PRINT EVENTS

BOSTON AREA

South Africa: Artists, Prints, Community/ Twenty Five Years at The Caversham Press

808 Gallery, Boston University

808 Commonwealth Ave., Boston MA 02215

Feb. 8 – Mar. 27

A comprehensive survey of work from the printmaking studio and artist residency The Caversham Press located in KwaZulu Natal, South Africa. The exhibition will feature over 120 prints as well as artist books and community-based projects produced at Caversham by a diverse roster of South African and international artists. Founded in 1985 during the turbulent years of apartheid, the Caversham Press has occupied an important place in the development of South African printmaking. From the early years in which Caversham worked almost exclusively with formally trained white artists, such as William Kentridge, to its current focus on training largely young black artists, Caversham's history reflects the dramatic political and cultural shifts that have occurred in South Africa over the past two and half decades.

Malcolm Christian, Gallery Talk, An informal gallery talk by an artist closely associated with the Caversham Press - the prints, the artists, the CreACTIVE Centers Program. Thursday, Feb. 17, 12:30 – 2 PM
Friday, Feb. 25, 3 - 4 PM

Three Artists at The Caversham Press - Deborah Bell, Robert Hodgins and William Kentridge

Boston University Art Gallery

855 Commonwealth Ave., Boston MA 02215

Feb. 8 – Mar. 27

The three South African artists were integral to the founding years of Caversham and together created three collaborative print portfolios—"Hogarth in Johannesburg," "Little Morals," and "Ubu Tells the Truth"—as well as many individual prints at Caversham between 1985 and 1992. Comprising over 65 prints, the three, politically charged portfolios and selections of individual prints not only reflect Caversham's early history but also articulate the artists' personal perspectives of living and working in South Africa during the turbulent years between late apartheid and the transition to a new democracy.

Gallery Hours: Tuesday–Friday: 10 AM –5 PM; Saturday & Sunday: 1 PM –5 PM

Reception: Wednesday, Feb. 9, 6 -8 PM

Exhibition Event: Tim Hamill Visiting Artist Lecture: William Kentridge

Monday, Feb. 28, 6:30 PM, Morse Auditorium, 602 Commonwealth Ave., Boston MA
One of South Africa's leading visual artists, William Kentridge is best known for his remarkable films, works on paper, and theatrical works. His recently acclaimed exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art in New York featured work from the past two decades, along with films and motorized theater sets. Kentridge's work touches on the atrocities of apartheid and social injustice, yet also reflects the new South Africa. new." Presented by Boston University School of Visual Arts at the College of Fine Arts.
